Guiteau's Jail Life.

BE IS SCRIBBLING ON BIS AUTOBIOGRAPHT AND IS SAID TO BE GROWING MEANER LOOKING—BE WANTS HIS MEALS SENT IN.

Guiteau is employing a great deal of his time in Jail now in writing, and has stopped talking. He is writing, it is understood, the life of the man who is, in his estimation, the greatest man in the world—Charles J. Guiteau. He expects to have it printed some day in the newspapers. He is now, it appears, quite anxious to have the President live, several weeks of meditation in jail having convinced him that there is little glory and less pleasure in being hanged. A gentleman who has had several opportunities of seeing him recently said to a Star reporter: "He is the meanest-looking man I ever saw, and he seems to grow meaner looking every time I see him. His features are regular enough, but there is a hang-dog look about him that I never saw about any other man. Such mean-looking eyes I never saw before. His pictures flatter him. He looks just what he is—a beat." Guiteau to the station-house and seen the prisoner, and finding he was not the man had returned to their work in disgust. The case was postponed until they could be sent for. After the docket had been distance to the case was again called and the witnesses sworn. Five colored women, including the sister of the deceased, said they witnesses sworn. Five colored women, including the sister of the deceased, said they witnesses sworn. Long before the hour for the court to meet both sides of Franklin street from the Oid Market to the Odd-Fellows' Hall were lined with spectators waiting for the prisoners to be taken up from the station-house for trial. There was some excitement manifested on the part of some excitement manifested on the part of some of the colored people, but after awhile it became noised abroad that the police had the wrong man, and before half-past 9 the crowd had perceptibly diminished. Some four or five hundred, principally colored persons of both sexes, crowded into the court-room and awaited the issue of the examination. The case of Matthews Taylor was the first called, but the witnesses were slow in responding. It appeared that several of those summoned had been to the station-house and seen the prisoner, and finding he was not the man being only one year of age, was taken with them, and thus snatched from the very

that the murderer is still lurking near the for that sum he might be able to procure it.—

A Detective's Mistake.

ARREST OF A WAR-DEPARTMENT CLERK WHO WENT TO NEW YOR TO ATTEND A FUNERAL. Captsin William R. Smith, a clerk in the grown of the send by a lady friend, he left Washington for this city to attend the funeral of a relative on Tuesday. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Captain Smith and the lady left French's Hotel, intending to take the 3 o'clock train on the Pennsylvania railing add from Washington. As they were about to enter the train in the depôt at the foot of Exchange place. Jersey City, Detective Cooper, one of Pinkerton's men, arrested Captain Smith, saying that he wanted him on a charge of forging a note for $765 on the First National Bank of Richmond.

The Captain was greatly astonished, and denied that he had ever committed and my crime. POLICE COURT .- The following cases were disposed of yesterday:
Mike Moltz, assaulting and beating John Kennedy, was fined 85.

Some time since mention was made in this paper of a colored female who, purporting to have just escaped from Cuba, was advertising to find her mother. Her story was so marvellous that it was regarded by many to be the fanciful and reckless utterance of a disordered mind, while others believed her to be an impostor wishing to practice fraud upon the credulity of her race. Thus she received but poor encouragement, and was at times treated with an indifference and coldness that was calculated to repress any sane female in the practice of a "little game." She, however, has persisted in her story and adhered to it strictly, even as to minor details. She ever, has persisted in her story and adhered to it strictly, even as to minor details. She recently applied to the deacons of the First African Baptist church for the use of their lecture-room in which to recount the story of her trials in the form of a lecture. This request was refused, but she was told she could visit the church on Wednesday last— the regular meeting-night—and tell her ternoon about 3 o'clock, during the prevastory, and if the congregation chose to help her they might. She accepted the proposi-tion, and although in her address she gave a graphic and stirring account of her years of slavery and miraculous escape, the pecu-niary recompense therefor was not every encouraging, being variously estimated at between thirty-five and forty cents.

She represents that her name is Rosa Brooks atias Grandison, the last name is Rosa Brooks atias Grandison, the last name being given her from the family name of her former owners. Sixteen years ago, she says—just before the close of the late war—her young mistress, then living in this city, married a Mr. Grandison, of Havana, Cuba.
